Cyber Security: Protect and Prevent Training Course

Ensure your Employees and Organization are Taking the Right Precautions to Minimize your Cyber Risks

No matter your industry, size or geographic location, every organization faces a growing array of complex cyber security risks. While an organization may invest in technology designed to detect and prevent network breaches, organizations must also address the human side of the cyber security equation.

Many of the most common and destructive cyber risks don’t happen due to hacks or breaches of an organization’s firewall, they occur because your employees unknowingly create risks by falling prey to cyber threats such as phishing attacks and theft of their electronic devices.

To mitigate today’s cyber security threats, organizations must focus on IT security efforts, and broad-based employee training designed to raise awareness and change behaviors. Unless employees are trained about this risk area and the role they play in helping create a cyber-secure and resilient environment, even the best technical defenses are destined to fail.
